SURPRISE GIFT—Joseph W. Thomas, 70, second from right, head Sanforizing man on second shift in White Oak Plant Finishing Department, retired recently after working for 10 years here. He plans to take it easy at his farm on Rt. 1, Summerfield. His brother, who has been in the Coast Guard for 30 years, is also retiring, so they are planning a lot of hunting and fishing together. The retired Cone employee and his wife have four grown children. His co-workers at White Oak surprised him with a gift on September 3. Shown here are, left to right, Mrs. Mary Randleman, Bruce Archer, presenting gift; Tom Hendry, James Self, Mr. Thomas and Mrs. Anna Childress.

Employees Tell Why They Are Y Members

With the Cone Memorial YMCA membership drive starting tomorrow night, The Textorian presents here answers to the question: "Why do you belong to Cone Memorial YMCA?"

James M. Whitt, Carding Department at White Oak Plant, states:

Whitt

"I have attended the YMCA since I was a small child. I am interested in participating in all sports the "Y" has to offer. There are excellent swimming facilities. It is a good place to take your children.

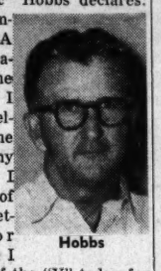
"By supporting our YMCA, we make available a place for social functions. The reading room too is a good place for reading and meeting friends."

Thomas Harvey Coffer, employee in Cone Mills Laboratory, has this to say:

Coffer

"As a small child, I recognized the advantages of being a Y member, and I practically grew up with the YMCA. As an adult, I enjoy using the facilities such as the darkroom since I am interested in photography. By supporting this fine organization, it will help young boys and girls to be able to enjoy things I as a child enjoyed."

Clarence "Doc" Hobbs declares:



Hobbs

"I am a member of the YMCA for several reasons. I enjoy the fellowship that I have with the fellows around the "Y." During my younger years I was a member of the varsity basketball team for eight years and I am a member of the "Y" today for the help it has rendered me in the past and present. It offers the youth of our community a better opportunity for spiritual, mental and physical development. For a $3.00 yearly membership it offers one of the best bargains that I know."

Marshall Varner, Revolution Division Chemical Department, says:

Varner

"The YMCA offers a variety of sports which help keep a person in good physical condition. The gym is my favorite spot as I enjoy basketball. You need the "Y" and the "Y" needs you."

Henry Stanley, Revolution Division Dyeing Department, says:

Stanley

"As a child I enjoyed going to the YMCA and although I do not use the facilities very often, the main reason I joined Cone Memorial YMCA was to help support an institution that affords a great deal of pleasure to youngsters of our community. It is an organization worthy of our support and I urge the people in this area to join right away."

W. E. Shepard Dies At N. J. Residence

W. Ellison Shepard, long known in textile manufacturing circles, died of a heart attack at his home at 67 Evergreen Place in East Orange, N. J. on Saturday, September 11, at the age of 78.

Mr. Shepard enjoyed a long and successful career in the textile industry. He joined Cone Mills Inc., then known as Cone Export & Commission Co., Inc., on December 15, 1909 and retired on August 1, 1946. During his association with Cone, Mr. Shepard handled the out of town trade and Canadian accounts, working from the New York City office. In addition, he was responsible for local resident buying offices. Prior to that time, he traveled in the territories.

Mr. Shepard was a lifelong resident of East Orange. He attended the New Jersey Academy and for many years was a violinist with the Haydn Symphony, and orchestra which later became the New Jersey Symphony. He was a member of the Munn Avenue Presbyterian Church and of the Essex County Club. Mr. Shepard and his wife, the former Edna Reynolds, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on October 29, 1953.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Shepard is survived by his two daughters, Mrs. Harry S. Campbell of Short Hills, N. J., and Mrs. Fred R. Fast of Essex Fells, N. J., and four grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at 3 p.m. on Tuesday, September 14, at the Colonial Home in East Orange. Many Cone Mills executives and former associates were present at the services. Burial was in Rosedale Cemetery in Orange.

Family Reunion

Crutchfield-Peeden families will have a reunion at Camp Herman next Sunday with a picnic lunch.

Daniel W. Holler

Daniel W. Holler Is Accident Victim

Daniel W. Holler, 68, Proximity Plant machinist who completed 50 years with Cone Mills last May, died last Monday night from injuries received in an accident in the plant. Funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at Proximity Methodist Church with Rev. O. L. Brown, pastor, and Rev. Jim H. Green conducting the service. Burial was in Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Mr. Holler, who lived at 1210 Park Avenue, came to work at Proximity on May 1, 1904, starting out in the Engine Room. He worked for a while in the Dye House, then the Beaming Department and later as an electrician in the Machine Shop, then machinist.

A resident of Greensboro for 52 years, Mr. Holler was a member of Proximity Methodist Church.

In a Textorian interview two weeks ago, Mr. Holler said, "I've associated with the oldest and the youngest of the Cone family since I came here in knee pants. If I

Souther and Alspaugh Present Paper On Stream Pollution

Hobart Souther and Thomas Alspaugh, Cone Mills Laboratory, presented a paper on stream pollution at the meeting of American Association of Textile Chemists and Colorists in Atlanta this week.

Topic of their study is "Biological Treatment of Highly Akaline Textile Mill Waste Sewage Mixtures."

Mr. Souther presided over the session this morning. The convention closes tomorrow.

200 Attend P.T.A. Meeting At Proximity

Proximity PTA met last Tuesday night in the school auditorium with 200 members present. Richard Sullivan presided. Parents were invited to visit their children's room and later had a social hour in the school cafeteria.

Attendance prizes were won by Mrs. Wellon's grade for elementary and by Mr. McCall's for high school.

Revolution Items

Mr. Z. C. Newnam celebrated his 85th birthday last week. Mr. Newnam worked in Revolution Flannel Plant for 40 years and retired in 1947 at the age of 77.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Strickland recently moved into their new home on Lee's Chapel Road. Both Mr. and Mrs. Strickland are employed in Revolution Flannel Plant and lived in Revolution until completion of their home.

S/Sgt. and Mrs. Wesley Crayton, and infant daughter of Albuqueque, New Mexico and Yeoman Franklin D. Crayton, of the U.S.S. Missouri, now docked in New York City, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Willie Beale.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Foster of Gibsonville, and Mr. R. V. Gillespie of Draper spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Willie Beale.

Miss Betty Lou Beale, student nurse at Rex Hospital will be home Thursday to attend the wedding of Miss Martha Wright in Coleridge.

Accompaning Miss Beale to Coleridge will be her parents and Mr. Edgar Allen of Charleston, S. C.

Textile Machinery Industry Important

Charlotte, N. C. . . . Southern textile interests have "discovered" the American textile machinery industry.

Textile manufacturing and the production of capital equipment for textile mills have been allied industries since Samuel Slater built the first water driven spinning machines in this country, back in 1790.

In fact, the textile machinery industry has been called the "cornerstone" upon which was built America's extensive textile empire.

In the minds of many mill executives, however, textile machinery people were solely the suppliers of mill equipment. That single designation is as outmoded today as Slater's old spinning mill, textile men say.

The textile machinery industry and its representative group, the American Textile Machinery Association, is discovered to be a great source of industrial leadership as well as the producer of several hundred millions of dollars of capital goods, annually. Although A.T.M.A. is a relatively small group in number of companies included in its membership, it is one rich in economic statesmanship, technological achievement, and interesting personalities.

This is evidenced by agenda of textile association conventions and conferences over the past year and continuing into this fall and winter.

Executives of members firms of American Textile Machinery Association appear on the program of nearly every Southern textile gathering. Kicking off the fall convention season is the annual meeting of the Combed Yarn Spinners Association to be held at Grove Park Inn, Asheville, N. C., September 23-24.

Feature of the Combed Yarn meeting is a panel on Spinning Mill Efficiency through Machine Modernization. Participants will be:

Robert J. McConnell, Vice-President, Saco-Lowell Shops Malcolm Campbell, Dean, School of Textiles, North Carolina State College, will be moderator of the panel.

Many textile executives weighing production costs and competitive markets say this panel will be a big drawing card in attendance.

The Delta Council announces that the first afternoon of the annual Spinner-Breeder Conference, October 11-12-13, will be given over to textile machinery developments. The Conference, which customarily alternates between manufacturing

Opening Class For Mentally Retarded Children This Fall

A class for mentally retarded children is being opened this Fall under sponsorship of the Association for Mentally Retarded Children, the Junior Woman's Club and Greensboro College. Children between the ages of six and 10, who are not eligible for public school are currently being accepted. This is a privately sponsored class without any financial support from the city or county.

Mrs. J. Berge Neill will be the teacher, under supervision of Mrs. John R. Peck. Mrs. Neill has done substitute work in the city schools for a number of years and has worked with school children of all ages in that capacity. Mrs. Peck has taught retarded children at Stewart Home School, Frankfort, Ky., for 18 years, will serve in an advisory capacity only.

Space for the class has been donated by Greensboro College. Plans are now underway to furnish the classroom and playground. The cost of actual operation will be pro-rated among the students on a strickly non-profit basis.

The formation of this class and the beginning of special education in the city schools marks the beginning of a new era of hope for mentally handicapped children in Greensboro. Plans are underway for the city schools eventually to provide facilities and training for this group of children under the guidance of Dr. John K. Peck, the newly appointed director of special education in the city schools.

However, this newly organized class is to serve the needs of as many of these children as possible within this age group, until the city schools secure teachers for them. If the demand is great enough, plans may be made to open a second class before the year is over. Any parent wishing further information may call 3-7571.

Horlick And Schwartz Share Pigeon Honors

Piedmont Racing Pigeon Club held its second race of the year September 12—a 100 mile affair from Lynchburg, Va., with J. N. Horlick and Harry Schwartz sharing top honors. This was a fast race with 96 birds from 10 lofts. The speed of the winning bird would equal about 46 miles per hour.

Birds owned by the following members won the first positions in the order listed.

First—Horlick, 1355.38 yds. per minute; second—Schwartz, 1349.25; third—Schwartz, 1345.91; fourth—Horlick, 1340.74; fifth—McDaniel, 1339.33; sixth, Hartsook, 1337.29; seventh—Hartsook, 1336.25; eighth—Needham, 1332.21; ninth, McDaniel, 1316.42 and tenth—Hunt & Barts, 1308.61.

Next week's race will be held from Charlottesville, Va. The distance is 150 air-line miles.

Cone Legion Post Plans Stew Sale

Cone Post 386, American Legion, has decided to have a Brunswick stew at White Oak YMCA on October 23 with proceeds going for community betterment and the post's building fund. The post met last Friday night in the Legion Hall with Commander Parsons presiding.

Last Saturday night 75 legionnaires and their families had an ice cream supper at Camp Herman. Nine and a half gallons of ice cream was served.

Commander Parsons showed several motion pictures to the group.

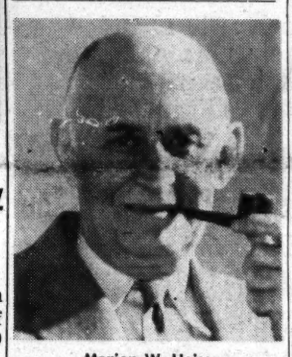
Ballroom Dancing Class To Organize

A ballroom dancing class to meet on Thursday nights at 7 p.m. in White Oak gym is now being organized. All employees who are interested in learning to dance or how to dance better are urged to enroll. Husbands, wives and friends are invited to attend. Lessons will start when enrollment reaches 20.

Those interested in taking the lessons are asked to call Miss Maxine Allen or W. L. Riley at 9621.

Y Membership Drive Kick-Off Dinner Sat.

Annual Cone Memorial Young Men's Christian Association membership campaign kick-off dinner will be at the White Oak Y.M.C.A. tomorrow (Saturday) night at 6 o'clock. All persons working on the drive have been invited to attend. This will begin a two-weeks drive for new and renewed members for the three local associations. The kick-off dinner will be followed by a report dinner Saturday night, October 2, at the Proximity building.



Marion W. Heiss

Marion W. Heiss, vice president of Cone Mills Corporation, will deliver the kick-off address. Sydney M. Cone, vice president of Cone Mills Corporation, will be toastmaster for the banquet. Comments will be made by Gustav Ziprik, membership secretary of the Y.M.C.A.; V. O. Watson, general chairman of the membership campaign, and the captains from the four divisions. They are Wade Jenkins, Cleo Honeycutt, Will Marshburn, and Gordie Boyd.

This drive will be the most extensive canvass the Y.M.C.A. has ever made to get members with everyone in and around Cone Mills being asked to join. Membership fee for men is $3.00 per year, for women, $2.00 per year, and East White Oak, $2.00 per year.

Cone Toastmasters Elect Officers

Norman Pinkelton was elected president of the newly organized Cone Toastmasters Club at the regular weekly meeting last Monday. The election of permanent officers was one of the first steps of the club's becoming a full fledge affiliate with Toastmasters International.

Other officers elected were Jim Ward, vice president; Fred Ziprik, secretary; Walter Caviness, treasurer; Byron Calhoun, sergeant at arms; Merlin Beaver, deputy governor; and Wally Brown, educational chairman. Installation and charter night will be held in October.

After the meeting the officers met with Wayne Cates, secretary-treasurer of the Downtown Toastmasters Club, and discussed membership.

This club is open to those who are interested in furthering themselves in self explanation—if you have such a desire, join the Toastmasters at their next meeting.

The program for September 20 is as follows.

Toastmaster, Bernard Sizemore; topicmaster, Paul Cockman; evaluator, Jim Ward; speakers, Wade Wylie, Howard Pickard, C. C. Whitt, Frank Starling.

Hold Denim Prices Through 4th Quarter

Cone Mills Inc. announced yesterday the offering of their denims for shipment during October-November-December at the basis of 37 cents per yard for eight ounce Sanforized.

This price is being extended through the fourth quarter in order to assure continuation of the present heavy volume movement through the various channels of manufacture and distribution, despite the full justification of a price increase at this time.

Former Teacher At Ceasar Cone Dies

Funeral service will be held today at Lambeth Chapel for Mrs. Lillie Hurley Page, 74, a former teacher at Ceasar Cone School. Mrs. Page died Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Gillis of Marianna, Fla. Burial will be in the Biscoe Cemetery near Troy.

Mrs. Page taught here for 35 years. She was a graduate of Meridith College, Raleigh, and did postgraduate work at Woman's College. She was a native of Randolph County. She was a member of the First Baptist Church here. Mrs. Page moved to Florida seven years ago.

Besides her daughter, she is survived by a son, G. G. Page of Sylva; two sisters, Mrs. W. C. Kanoy of 208 N. Mendenhall Street and Mrs. R. E. Page of Statesville, and one granddaughter.

Ceasar Cone P.T.A. Board Holds Meeting

Executive board of Ceasar Cone PTA will meet next Tuesday night at 7:30, September 21, at the school in the office of the principal, Mrs. Margaret Wall.

The regular meeting of the PTA will be on Tuesday, September 28, at 7:30 in the school auditorium. A social hour will follow.

Attend Game

Mr. and Mrs. Vernard Kendrick and daughter, Judith, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morris and Carol Lewey went to Raleigh last Tuesday night for the Greensboro-Raleigh High School football game.

Honest Differences and Unwise Practices

Propaganda and rabble rousing tactics are as old as the hills; however, the former began to reach maturity during World War I.

Both have been tools used extensively by international forces and to an appreciable extent by politicians in the United States. In a world as it should be, or in a country such as the United States should be, the use of either propaganda or rabble rousing tactics would be unnecessary. However, we do not expect ideal conditions to exist throughout the world for at least many years to come, and it is too much to expect American politicians and pressure groups who have particular axes to grind to abandon those tools.

We are becoming alarmed, however, when we note the extreme to which both propaganda and rabble rousing are being used even within our city limits.

Intelligent people should endeavor to ascertain facts and think things through. There has been too much distortion of facts, too much misrepresentation, and too many attempts at rabble rousing in Greensboro; however, we must give credit to the overall good judgment of Greensboro people who have not succumbed to some of the attempted programs of rabble rousing.

We fear, in view of the recent controversy, that some usually wise, level-headed people have permitted themselves to abandon—we hope temporarily—their normal ability to analyze properly situations.

The reason for this editorial is that Greensboro has much to lose if she becomes a town of narrowness and prejudices teaming with rabble rousing practices. It is very easy for a town or section to slip into such a position. Most frequently only a very few people are responsible for the degradation of a town by the use of vicious practices. Unfortunately, after a town becomes so inflicted and earns a bad reputation, it is very difficult to accomplish a sane reversal.

We trust that Greensboro has not gone too far in that direction. We believe that the good judgment of the overwhelming majority of people will see that it does not happen. We also believe that many who have permitted their emotions and prejudices to influence them will again attain a more level-headed perspective.

Honest differences of opinion will always exist. Proper solutions and the overall welfare cannot be best accomplished by intolerant propaganda and vicious agitation.

Speaking of Public Safety

"Get tough!"

That's the advice of increasing numbers of persons who are working to reduce traffic accidents.

"Get tough on driver licensing procedures" . . . "Get tough on law enforcement" . . . "Get tough on penalities for violations" . . . "Get tough on drunken drivers" . . . "Get tough on teen-age speed demons" . . . "Get tough on defective vehicles" . . . "Get tough on traffic safety engineering," are typical comments of citizens reported by Edmond C. Powers of Cleveland.

Powers' summary of growing public opinion is as follows:

"If we are determined to reduce traffic slaughter, we should be as tough in dealing with the situation as we would be in resisting an invasion or any other agent of destruction.

"38,000 deaths, more than a million injured people, and an economic loss of nearly $4 billion every year is a crime of the worst order.

"Mealy-mouthed measures never won a war and in terms of death and destruction, traffic accidents are the costliest conflict in our history.

"Driver education in our schools, group meetings and discussions, traffic safety organizations, public appeals through press, radio and television, all serve a useful purpose.

"But until we drive home the real seriousness of the accident problem by direct disciplinary measures, we have little hope of reducing accidents to any great extent.

"These disciplinary measures should include revocation of licenses by habitually thoughtless and incompetent drivers, ridding our streets and throughfares of unsafe vehicles, refusal to issue licenses to the mentally and physically unfit, and application of our best thought to the engineering of safety into our existing and new thoroughfares.

"It all boils down to a tough policy on the part of authorities at all levels of traffic administration and regulation.

"Until this tough policy goes into action, we are just begging the question of how to reduce accidents."

Famous Lady Is 68 in October

The most famous lady in all the world—Miss Liberty in New York Harbor—is 68 years old this October, and in excellent health and spirits. President Grover Cleveland dedicated the statue Oct. 28, 1886.

It was the inspiration of the Alsation sculptor Bartholdi who, after visiting the United States in 1871, returned to France to begin work on its design. His mother served as model; contributions amounting to $250,000 in small sums came from Frenchmen, women and children. The statue was shipped to New York in sections and reassembled.

Six Mistakes

The Roman philosopher and statesman, Cicero, said it 2,000 years ago, and it's still true today. The "six mistakes of man" are:

1. The delusion that individual advancement is made by crushing others; 2. The tendency to worry about things that cannot be changed or corrected; 3. Insisting that a thing is impossible because we cannot accomplish it; 4. Refusing to set aside trivial preferences; 5. Neglecting development and refinement of the mind, and not acquiring the habit of reading and study; 6. Attempting to compel other persons to believe and live as we do.

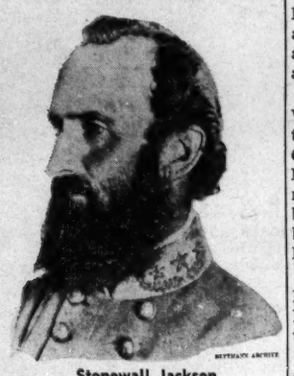
Greensboro Writer's Biography of Jackson To Be Published Mon.



Stonewall Jackson

A most worthy example of the talents of Greensboro's Burke Davis as reporter, story teller and historian is his new biography of Lt. General T. J. Jackson, C.S.A., They Called Him Stonewall, to be published next Monday, September 20, by Rinehart and Company, Inc.

Bringing to this biography of a little understood Confederate leader, all of his ability for clear and colorful characterization, Burke Davis succeeds in creating a sympathetic feeling for his subject without idealizing him. He paints him in all of his eccentricities of personality, his rather stern and harsh manner on the battlefield which led his men to call him Stonewall. However, he does not fail to show clearly the God-fearing, though methodically religious, man the gentle husband and loving father, who was allowed only a "brief elegance" before he was accidently killed by his own men.

Mr. Davis gives a graphic portrait of the Lexington, Va. Jackson, professor at Virginia Military Institute, who married a daughter of the president of the neighboring Washington College (later to be Washington and Lee), with the bride's sister accompanying them on the honeymoon. The biographer depicts the pathetic death of the wife and Jackson's mourning for her and then his second marriage to a daughter of a retired president of Davidson College, the birth of their daughter, Julia, and finally Jackson's tragic death a few months later.

From his dramatic account of the old and thrilling story of the hanging of John Brown which opens the book to the very last, touching account of the death of Stonewall Jackson, one of the most moving pieces of writing to grace a biography in a long while, Mr. Davis holds the reader's interest with his style of authenticity and accuracy for detail. After reading the book, one feels that he has read a first-hand record of one who was on the battlefields of Falling Waters, Manassas and Chancellorsville.

No student of the Civil War should be without They Called Him Stonewall. In fact, teachers would do well to include it on their required co-lateral reading lists. Those who like a good story as well as an accurate biography will want to own this one. The war campaign maps on the inside cover are well worth having.

Burke Davis and his wife, Evangeline, live at Guilford College in an ancient house which was a temporary British military hospital after the Battle of Guilford Courthouse in the Revolution, scene of one of his novels, The Ragged Ones. The Stonewall biography is his fourth book. Mr. Davis is on the staff of the Greensboro Daily News, and prior to coming here, he was a reporter for the Baltimore Sun. He attended Duke University and was graduated from the University of North Carolina. His parents are also Greensboro citizens.

Health For All

Call It A Name

Have you ever heard of a disease called "spondylitis" or "bibbus"? If not (and it seems most probable that you have not), perhaps you have heard of Pott's disease. These are all names for tuberculosis of the spine, that painful disease which causes the deformity that we call humpback.

The disease tuberculosis has burdened mankind for many centuries, but the term 'tuberculosis" is only a little over 100 years old. Before that, and indeed in ordinary usage until very recently, tuberculosis was called consumption. There was an early Hindu word with this meaning, which referred to tuberculosis. The Greek word for consumption, "phthisis," is still often used by the medical profession. Translations of "consumption" mean tuberculosis in most languages.

Tuberculosis which affects the lymph nodes in the neck used to be called scrofula or, more picturesquely, the King's Evil. The latter name came from people's belief that it could be cured by the king's touch.

John Bunyan, who wrote Pilgrim's Progress, called consumption "the captain of all the men of death," and in the 19th century it was quite generally known as the White Plague.

Because tuberculosis has been so widespread, it has been called by many names—has had names all too well known in nearly every country. We hope and work for the day when the disease will be so rare that people will have to look up "tuberculosis" or consumption" or any of its synonyms in the dictionary when they run across it in their reading. That time is a long way off, but is not outside the realm of possibility.

To Meet Monday

White Oak Community Club will meet Monday night, September 20, at 7:30 at White Oak YMCA with Mrs. Lola Martindale and Miss Beatrice Jones as co-hostesses.

DOGS

by Forbey Manning

City Dogs

One often hears the opinion voiced, usually by someone who has never owned a dog, that dogs should be banned from large cities. These people often mean well, basing their opinion on the claim that city dogs have little chance to romp on the busy streets, that they lead a completely artificial life and are generally unhappy.

Perhaps the sharpest protest against any movement to exclude dogs from cities would come from the dogs themselves. Ever since man abandoned the cave and moved into huts, finally into villages and cities, the dog has tagged along willingly and happily. He has never failed to adapt himself to man's living conditions, for with the possible exception of man himself, the dog is very likely the most adaptable of all creatures.

Ban dogs from cities? Anyone who advocates this should watch a guide dog threading its way across a crowded street, giving the use of its own eyes to its sightless master and performing the job with that dedicated air which all guide dogs seem to assume. Or watch a child in a congested tenement district playing with his adoring puppy and learning for the first time, perhaps, that love and gentleness exist even in the grim and limited world of the slum.

Whether a minority likes it or not, chances are that the dog will remain a fixture in our cities as long as men choose to live in them. And if there's anything to all this talk about outer space, don't be surprised on the day the first man blasts off to settle in a new environment on Mars or the moon to see his dog zooming along with him, neatly encased in his own little space suit with just room enough to wag his tail.

PEANUTS, ANYBODY — Everyone in Haw River has been buying peanuts for the past two weeks but Mrs. Allen Pearson, shown above, is buying the first bag that was sold from Kiwanian J. C. Clayton. Proceeds from the sale will be used to finance "Kids Day" to be sponsored by the Haw River Kiwanis Club in the near future.

centers and agricultural sections, this year will be held in the heart of the cotton belt, at Greenville in the Mississippi Delta.

Representatives of the American Textile Machinery Association scheduled for this technical discussion are: Dr. Zoltan Szaloki, Assistant Director of Research, Whitin Machine Works — "New Developments in Opening and Cleaning Equipment"; Robert M. Jones, Vice-president in Charge of Research and Development, Saco-Lowell Shops—"Some Aspects of the Spinning Process"; John R. Schenck, Southern Manager, Dryer Division, Proctor & Schwartz, Inc. — "Relations of New Finishing Methods to Cotton's Future."

Honorable James O. Eastland, U. S. Senator from Mississippi, a member of the Senate Agricultural Committee, and in private life successful cotton planter, will serve as moderator.

The annual meeting of the Cotton Quality Committee, under sponsorship of the National Cotton Council, will be held in Greenville, Mississippi, October 14. W. Frank Lowell, Vice-president of the American Textile Machinery Association and vice-president of Saco-Lowell Shops, has been appointed by the Association to represent it at the committee meeting. This year is the first time that A.T.M.A. has been included as a permanent member of the Cotton Quality Committee, of which Charles R. Sayre, president of Delta Pine and Land Company, is Chairman.

The Charlotte Textile Club, one of the livest organizations in the textile South is planning a monthly series of luncheon-conferences featuring discussions of national and international economic trends, according to Frank P. Barrie, president of the Club. Mr. Barrie is an executive of Universal Winding Company and is located in Charlotte.
